

Failed Attempts to Legalize Euthanasia/Assisted Suicide in the United States

Ballot Measures

- 1991 - Washington State: Ballot Initiative 119, which would have legalized euthanasia and physician-assisted suicide, was defeated by voters by a vote of 54 to 46 percent.
- 1992 - California: Voters defeated Proposition 161, a ballot initiative which would have legalized euthanasia and physician-assisted suicide, by a vote of 54 to 46 percent.
- 1998 - Michigan: Measure B was overwhelmingly rejected by voters. The measure would have legalized physician-assisted suicide and was defeated by a vote of 70 to 30 percent.
- 2000 - Maine: The “Maine Death with Dignity Act,” patterned after the “Oregon Death with Dignity Act” which legalized physician-assisted suicide, was defeated by voters. The vote was 51 to 49 percent.

Since Oregon passed its assisted-suicide law in 1994—the only state to do so—numerous physician-assisted suicide and/or euthanasia bills have been introduced in 21 states, some multiple times. Not one has passed.

Seven states actually passed laws prohibiting assisted suicide:

Iowa, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Rhode Island, South Carolina, and Virginia
